"Evening World's" Appeal Brings It's His Regular Appearance as Aid to the Jordan Family.

Little Martha Burled-Food, Medicine at d Money Sent.

It was with a lighter heart and a re newed feeling of hope that John Jordan. of 26 Knickerbocker avenue, left his home this morning to resume his search

The awful sufferings and more than distressing condition of his family, was told yesterday in "The Evening World," and its appeal went home to many sympathetic hearts.

Martha, the beautiful little three-yearold daughter, who died on Sunday, was given a decent burial by Undertaker Brophy, of 577 Grand street, in Calvary Cemetery yesterday. The other two chilwere very sick with scarlet fever, are now pronounced out of danger, and food and clothing in quantities have been sent to the house by kind and sympathetic neighbors.

Mr. Jordan had left the house long before an "Evening World" reporter reached there this morning, but his bright little wife was at home. With tears of joy and gratitude she thanked "The Evening World" for its successful efforts in their behalf.

The surroundings proved the poor woman's story. A cracking fire biszed in the stove, and vegetables, coffee and meat were cooking. The children, who on Monday were birefooted and with bit little clothing to keep them warm, were better clad. Fresher and better bed-clothing had been furnished and the scantily furnished rooms were a more comfortable appearance.

Just as the reporter was leaving the house a mall-carrier came in, and his visit brought more joy to the bearts of the hapless people. He handed four letters to Mrs. Jordan.

Family Deserter.

Charles Monks, who says he lives at 153 East One Hundred and Sixth street, 153 East One Hundred and Sixth street, was held in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day on a charge of neglecting to provide for his wife.

Monks is a familiar figure in court. Every few months he runs away, leaving his wife penniless, is arrested and forgiven. Mrs. Jane Monks, who lives at 345 Berry street, Williamsburg, says her husband has another wife and family in New York, but beyond making this charge regularly Mrs. Monks has taken no action whatever.

At the Brazilian Consulate and at the office of Charles R. Fiint & Co., all knowledge of such a movement was denicd, and the idea was ridiculed as absurd.

United States District-Attorney Mitchell was also of the opinion that Mello's supporters had no ground to stand on in such an action for damages, as the insurgents were recognized by no power, and an expedition against them was not directed against a friendly nation, but to assist it.

He stabbed and killed the latter during a quarrel on the Fourth of July last, in which a number of Italian families took in the same crime, but his death sentitive was commuted to life imprisonment.
